How to use this template

Please first make a copy of this document, then make edits and adjustments that best meet your individual organization's needs. As you make your changes, consider the communities you live and work in, including specific experiences and unique environments that may impact how stories should and could be told.

Special Thanks

Thanks to the Provecho Collective team and The Colorado Trust Community Resilience Initiatives for supporting the development of this and similar capacity building resources. Special thanks to Deedee Clements and the Loaves and Fishes of Fremont County team for co-creating this template for other community-based organizations to use.

“For years, we struggled to find an easy way to capture the beautiful stories happening at Loaves and Fishes Ministries. The SOP the Provecho Collective helped our agency write was the missing piece! It’s full of helpful tips that make our staff feel confident and – most importantly – it makes sure our clients’ voices are shared in a way that feels right to them.”

- Deedee Clements, Executive Director of Loaves and Fishes Ministries of Fremont County
